Subject: What's going on?

While I was preparing to order my septic chemicals, I googled Biosafe One, and I noticed a link to court action pending with your company and a company called New tech bio. As a satisfied customer, I am hoping that all is well.

It also appears that new Tech Bio's website is strikingly similar to yours. Are you aware that this is causing me some concern, and I am sure it is causing concern to some of your other customers as well. What is going on?

Please let me know if my latest order is being processed properly.

Thank you,

John Howard

Subject: This is for argument of relevancy of keyword : Bio Safe One" and "secondary meaning"

This applies to only one keyword "Bio Safe One" that I is being used to expose the lies of the defendants claims. Please note we have had so much more exposure than just this one keyword its ridiculous. We use more than over 700 search engines when you submit a site. Online millions of people search the internet daily from all of these different search engines all over the world. www.biosafeone.com has been doing business online since March of 2002 so it has had tremendous exposure over the years enough to have established definite "secondary meaning" to for its trademarks. Plaintives website in fact dominated the online septic business since it came online. So more people than can be counted have seen and come to know our site that have searched for a septic product or cleaning product or grease trap product. Also plaintives have outstanding reputation with no complaints since co. started. Plaintives have 200 or more keywords per search engine there are more than 700 search engines, Yahoo, Google, and MSN are only the top three. You have Lycos, Alta Vista, Aol, etc. The defendants atty is claiming that we had not established "secondary meaning" and that "Bio Safe One" a sponsered keyword which they bought from the search engines illegally to purposely divert traffic away from plaintives website and confuse plaintives customers to draw plaintives customers the defendant's site to usurp their corporate image in the market place using copywritten images and text which clearly belonged to plaintives even the gramatical errors they copied.

Heres proof that defedants claim of no one searching for "Bio Safe One" as a keyword in totally false. Also please not that if it was not profitable that they purchase this keyword then why In fact did they go out of their way to purchase it?... to steal business away from plaintives. See one Search Engine Optimizations Tool for checking a keyword and his explanation. We will use the keyword "Bio Safe One" as the example.

I have pasted in links the results:

SEO explanation:

Well this nice little bit of code will tell you where you rank for links for any particluar keyword!

Goto www.google.com and type in the search bar the particular keyword with the allinanchor before the word then put a column after it then type in the keyword:

allinanchor:keyword

So if your keyword is fottball boots type in allinanchor:football boots

If you are ranked number 7 for "football boots" that means that you have the 7th placed site for getting links with "football boots" in the anchor text!

Here is a link to the results for keyword "Bio Safe One" <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=allinanchor%3ABio+Safe+One>

Secondary meaning argument

You will see that 17,500 web pages point or link back and forth from other websites back to www.biosafeone.com

One of these site on the bottom of page one show a radio station in Milwaukee which I am sure has tremendous exposure. So www.biosafeone.com definitely has secondary meaning.
